YOU MAY REMEMBER

The GALLEON is the pictorial record of the school year. In its pages we have endeavored to portray scenes of college life that you may recall, and perhaps cherish, as you think of your Alma Mater: ordinary classroom and campus situations; special events, on and off campus; organizations to whose success you have contributed; and portraits of friends and teachers. Study, play, leisure—we can only suggest the great variety of your interests. This book, then, is our interpretation of student life at Palm Beach Junior College.

Foreword

Fight that eight o'clock traffic. Search for a parking space. Read the bulletin board to discover what's urgent today. Hurry to class. Rush, rush, rush!

Fine arts courses are popular with most students: sketching, painting, singing, playing in the band.

Business and technical courses have the interests of others: business machines, electronics, nursing.

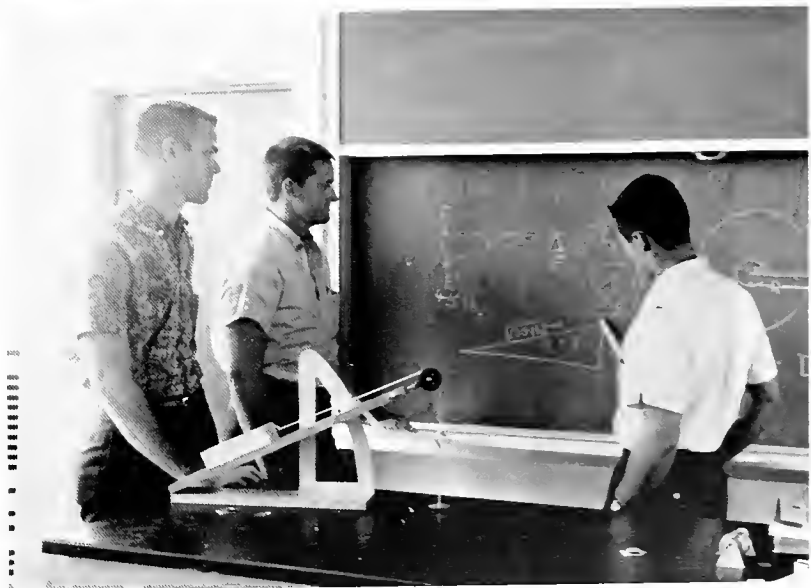

Arts and sciences are musts: Mr. Duncan's popular literature class and Mr. Lemmerman's chemistry lab.

Developing the microscope squint, the engineering drawing bend, and physical science doubts.

What is the most popular place on campus? The gym is the scene of lively dances, such as the all-campus "get-acquainted" dance in September. The library sometimes loses out in the popularity race with the student lounge.

Many an hour is spent quietly absorbing sunshine, or busily facing footlights in college plays.

Between classes, benches and railings are useful for sitting or perching. In the evening, formal affairs such as Philo's Arch Dance are social highlights of the year.

Our beach scene this year, representing many pleasant hours spent by PBJC students, is Ft. Lauderdale Beach during the spring influx of students from all over the country. Right, quiet scene in one of most attractive spots on campus, and below, not-so-quiet scene in Gym as students dance the Twist.

In the first semester the Evening Division employed seventeen extra teachers in addition to those already teaching in the day program. Many of these work in business or industry and teach their specialties at night.

MISS ANNE BUCKLEY
Secretary

In the fall of 1962 the Evening Division enrollment reached a peak of over 1100 students, as compared with 1600 day students. Crowded conditions forced many students into the evening program who would otherwise have enrolled in the day program.

MISS RACHEL CROZIER
Dean of Women

This year Miss Crozier and Miss Albertson are quietly observing remarkable anniversaries in their service to the College. Miss Crozier came to the College in 1938 and taught English for a number of years before being appointed Dean of Women. She is completing her twenty-fifth year at the College.

Miss Albertson has taught at the College even longer. She was the first teacher employed at the new junior college on its founding in 1933. As a biology teacher and as head of the Science Department, Miss Albertson is now completing her thirtieth year at Palm Beach Junior College.

Miss Crozier may be seen at any time running around campus, and Miss Albertson frequently at her microscope.

Clerical Staff Keeps the College Running Smoothly

MISS EDNA D. WILSON
Administrative Assistant

The Girl Fridays on these two pages are among the best known persons on campus. They handle telephone connections, take messages, give out a wealth of information, type tons of letters and directives; they run off duplicated materials, punch I.B.M. cards, and sell books; they distribute literature, make appointments, keep records, and do a million other tasks necessary for the smooth functioning of the College. The student is likely to come to one of these ladies first with his problem before getting a conference with an administrative officer.

The Year Begins in Friendly Atmosphere

The school year got off to a congenial start with campus politicians sparking a friendship campaign, greeting freshmen at the door of the library as they completed registration. At far left, Student Government President Tom Wells gallantly opens door and carries pencil for new freshman Liz Brown, who is loaded down with books. On September 7 a splash party was held for freshmen at Lido Pools, entertainment of guitar music and song provided by a quintet composed of Bob Scott, Glenn Galloway, Terry Coxe, Steve Ross, and Bob Lee. On September 20, the Intramural and Recreation Board sponsored an all-campus beachacue at Phipps Ocean Park in Palm Beach. Hard rains did not dampen spirits enough to halt sports or the picnic.

Sadie Hawkins Dance

Pictures by Forrest Dale

On November 10 the Co-Ed Board sponsored the annual Sadie Hawkins Day Dance in the gymnasium. Dogpatch costumes were universal. At a penny a vote, Andy Underwood was elected "Li'l Abner" and Cheryl Ellisor "Daisy Mae." About $375 were thus collected for a scholarship to a student on campus. Pledges of the three women's social clubs (such as Tri Omega's group below) provided entertainment.

In an impressive ceremony on November 12, Delta Omicron Chapter of Phi Theta Kappa tapped 23 new members. The College Singers presented a musical program.

Torrential rains did not discourage about 2,500 visitors to the campus on May 6, 1962, for the annual barbecue and open house. The barbecue is sponsored every year by Southside Kiwanis Club and Circle K Club for the benefit of the College. Guests toured the various laboratories and departments, watched rehearsals of the play "You Don't Say," and heard a music recital.

Dollars For Scholars Campaign Initiated

The open house officially opened the "Dollars for Scholars" campaign to raise funds to sponsor the work-scholarship program. Dean Glynn announced that the campaign was successful in raising enough money for six or eight assistantships.

The PBJC Alumni Association presented to Howell L. Watkins, Superintendent of Public Instruction of Palm Beach County, a plaque honoring him for his part in the growth and progress of the College.

"The Palm Beach Post-Times" printed a 20-page supplement helping to publicize the open house and make the general public more familiar with the programs of the Junior College.

COMMENT ON EDUCATIONAL THEATRE BY MR. WATSON B. DUNCAN, III, HEAD OF DEPARTMENT OF ENGLISH, SPEECH AND DRAMA:

Educational theatre is truly a teacher. It presents plays that represent the best dramatic literature and also trains both audience and students to appreciate living, vital theatre. It entertains, but it contributes something more than mere entertainment. The individual student is given the opportunity to participate in the production of a play from its inception on through scenery, lighting, make-up, costumes, etc., to its successful conclusion.

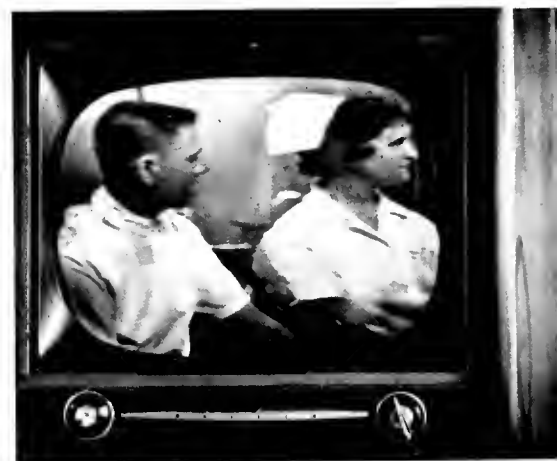

In a world where the professional stage is giving less and less opportunities, the colleges are fast becoming the last refuge of the students, the apprentices, and the coming dramatists . . . Drama at Palm Beach Junior College strives to develop memorable theatre in every department: visual, directional, and histrionic.

DID I HEAR A MOUSE?

"Well if there were one around I'd hear it because it's that quiet at our house since the boss put in Natural Gas air conditioning. It cools in summer and heats in winter and it has no moving parts to wear out — that's why it's so quiet. The boss says it's a real money-saver too. Why not drop a hint around your house. You'll be mighty glad you did."
